Greetings

An enthusiasm
for nature for over 35 years!

Dr. Malte Hozzel

Aromatherapist and Founder of the Brand Oshadhi

With heartfelt gratitude, we honor the incredible diversity of nature, which has gifted us with an extraordinarily rich world of plants over millions of years. Photosynthesis, this wondrous process, transforms sunlight into growth and serves as the foundation of all life. The ancient Rishis of India reverently called medicinal plants "Oshadhi," meaning "bearers of light." Inspired by this wisdom, we chose the name "Oshadhi" for our essential oils – a reflection of nature's purest and most concentrated essence and power.

EVERYTHING YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT HYDROLATES

What are hydrolates?

Through steam distillation, plants yield a two-phase mixture: the aromatic, water-insoluble essential oil that rises to the top, and the hydrolate – a gentle, water-based extract containing the plant's water-soluble compounds.

How to use hydrolates

Hydrolates are generally used topically or internally. Most hydrolates can be taken diluted. In her book Lydia Bosson, hydrolate expert, author, and aromatherapist, recommends one tablespoon of hydrolate per liter of water.

100% natural

Oshadhi plant waters are always 100% natural and do not contain alcohol or other preservatives.

Hydrolates for skincare

Hydrolates can be used as part of a natural and regular skin care routine or before a facial massage. They have a pH between 4 and 6 (depending on the plant), which is perfect for skincare.
